Where the heir or descendant does not perform the functions set forth in the deed of endowment or sells, disposes of, presents or donates the surplus income which he or she is entitled to enjoy instead of merely mortgaging it on usufruct or otherwise the entire trust property, thus violating the religious requirements, then he or she shall not be entitled to his or her turn in the management of the trust. Such heir or descendant shall not also be entitled to his or her share in the surplus income. His or her turn in the management of the trust shall accrue to the next of his or her heir to the trust.
